Advanced Placement/Dual Credit Courses (1st Reading)

- There was a question asked about if a sophomore (to be a Junior) has not taken the ACT, can they still take a DC Math course without the benchmark requirement. Last year, during COVID, that score was waived, but the problem is the universities will not give the student credit for the DC course if they do not have the benchmark score regardless of their score in the course. So, for the 21-22 school year, those students applying for DC will need the benchmark Math ACT score to enroll in a DC Math course.
